Julie

cher, what can I say? A year ago I wrote you a note. I've got to keep the disgusting and perverted stuff down to a bare min. (See that doesn't leave much, does it?) Well, it's been great. I was pretty down in the dumps one day and the next I met you! My whole life turned around in 24 hrs. It was great and every day with you makes it better and better. You're terrific. When we met, I was down in the dumps groveling around. Then you came along picked me up, polished me off and pointed me in the right direction. And then, instead of just pointing the way out, you came along and helped all of the way and now I know the direction you pointed to. You have a terrible pair of soft shoulders to cry on. Every time I see you, you have another surprise up your sleeve. Well kid, I've known you for under a year so far. Lets keep it going up love ya Chris

A never-ending variety of people makes the world both interesting and ever-changing. Like a good meal, life is at its best when it includes a little bit of everything. People as different as a club sandwich and chateaubriand, with equally contrasting cultures, lend diversity and intrigue to an otherwise mundane existence. How very dull living would be if everyone held the same views and thought the same way.

Life offers a multitude of choices in as broad a range as an extensive menu. One can stick with the tried and true, like the All-American hamburger, or venture to try something as exotic as ocean squid. Whatever the final decision, one can always go back for seconds or resolve to attempt something totally different the next time. A variety of options for a variety of palettes; that is the best part of what life has to offer. And, like a vintage wine, it can improve tremendously as time goes on.

SCHS Lives A Life Of Make Believe

The stage, decorated with familiar cartoon characters and fairytale scenes, portrayed a perfect "World of Make-Believe." The feelings that filled the hearts of the 18 Homecoming Court members were not, however, "make-believe" amidst all the alluring fantasy.

Starting the evening out, Master of Ceremonies, John Beffel, gave a general introduction and brief history of each court member's achievements at St. Catherine's. A performance by the Angel Arrangement followed, with their rendition of "Through the Eyes of Love". This warm welcome officially began the real ceremony.

Ted Jansen, Homecoming King of 1982, set the mood by offering his congratulations to the Court. Then the microphone was turned over to Principal James Lemense, who addressed the audience on the "Realness of the World of Make-Believe."

Finally, the anticipated moment arrived. Anxious eyes watched as John Beffel announced Tony Koleske and Maribeth Sreimle as second attendants to the King and Queen. Tension mounted while Jason Baietto and Ann Meisner made their way across the stage as first attendants to the King and Queen. After what seemed like an eternity, the time came for that "happy ending" found in all fairytales. The crowd cheered and gave a standing ovation as Ashley Culp escorted Anne Dziengel to the thrones, where they reigned as Homecoming King and Queen of 1983.

Spirit And Colors Day Add To World Of Make-Believe

"Kiddie flicks and comic strips" provided the setting for Spirit Day. Students and teachers dressed as their favorite fantasy characters. The sophomores swept all of the relay and tug-of-war titles during the afternoon's activities. Friday's picnic and assembly allowed students to express their class unity through wearing their traditional class colors and cheering for their classmates. The assemblies and picnic provided additional ingredients for the week's recipe of fun.

Homecoming Provides Welcome Change Of Pace

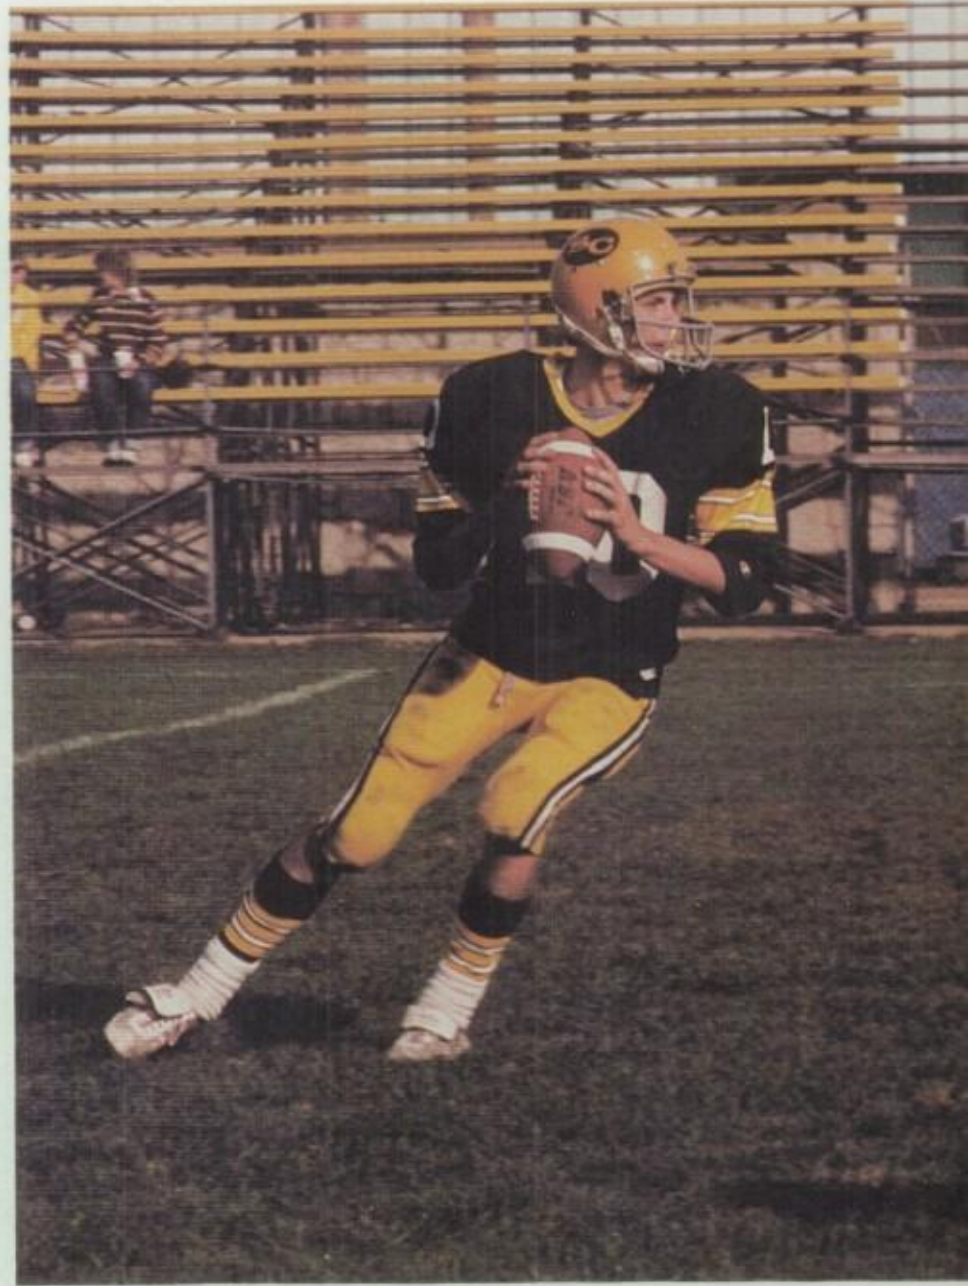

Opening the 1983 Homecoming celebration, the quaint events of the bonfire clearly expressed the idea that; although the flame fades away, the fire still burns.

Stemming from this optimistic view, one can easily recognize and appreciate the galant effort of the football players, who unfortunately lost to Thomas Moore.

Throughout the day the feeling remained and carried over to the final activity of the week, the dance.

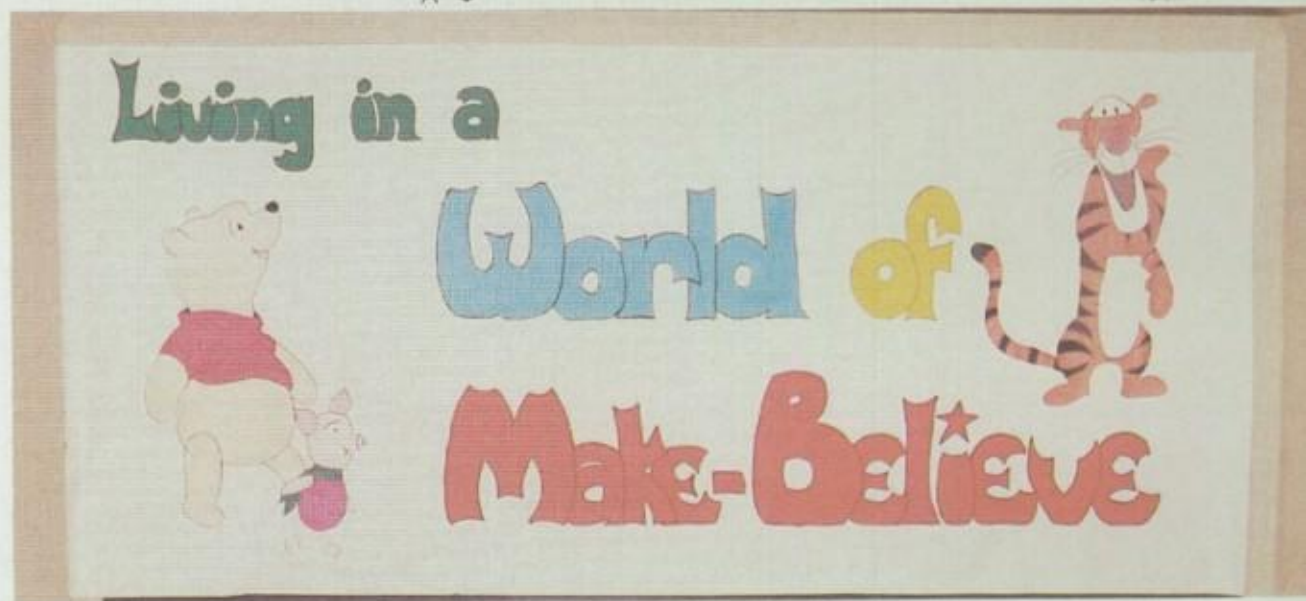

Students' attendance and their appreciation of the entertainment provided by "Leverage" clearly labeled the evening successful.

Overall the Homecoming weekend closed off a week which Homecoming Queen, Anne Dziengel described as "a special time for all and many fond memories to cherish forever after."

Catching Up With State Of The Art

Home computers today do not provoke the same fear and skepticism as they did when manufacturers first introduced them to the general public. Initially, people drew a mental picture of gangs and junkies hanging out at the local video arcade. Parents believed that their sons' and daughters' minds would turn to mush if they frequented any of these seedy dens of vice. The connection of this exaggerated perception of video games with home computers arose, because many of the computers can be programmed to play games, and many of the home video games can double as computers. A lot of people believed this was just one more way to raise a bunch of wide-eyed, gaping-mouthed youngsters with no imagination or ability to function without computer aid.

Although the pros and cons of this issue are available, there is no doubt that the computer is rapidly gaining respect, as more and more of the public opts for purchasing one for their homes. All sorts of functions can be performed by these machines, from budgeting, to monitoring the stocks, to using them as learning aids for children.

As society becomes more and more receptive to computers, it also becomes more dependent upon them. The present high school student today, does not enter college without at least attempting to gain a basic knowledge of computers. Increased enrollment in computer classes illustrates this point clearly. Once obscure courses like BASIC Programming, are now offered in most high schools, as well as a growing number of elementary schools. Colleges make extensive use of computers for records, student research, library catalogs and even have gone as far as to include terminals in the dormitories. The trend is to make accessibility easy, and, therefore, to encourage use.

But how widespread can computers really become, at least in the home? Prices add up quickly when all components are purchased "a la carte." A printer can easily more than double the original price of the computer. Where such a large investment is required, it remains questionable how many moderate income people can justify the purchase of a home computer. There are those, however, who predict that the inflated prices will fall, and both hardware and software will become affordable to the common man, just as calculators and digital watches did.

At any rate the expanding functions of computers in society are undeniable. If anything, the vista of possibilities seems only to be broadening. In all likelihood, the generations of tomorrow will be experiencing a new frontier in which the computer is not an object to be feared, but a valuable learning companion and ally.

International Day Cultures SCHS

Refrains of "Rubber Ducky", sung by the third year Spanish classes, rang through the halls on International Day, as did the lively can-can music from France and the hearty Polka beat from Germany. Without a doubt, however, the German "Chicken Dance" proved to be the most popular number of the day, because all students and faculty could join in the arm flapping, hip-wiggling, chaotic fun.

Food from such far away places as Munich, Germany, Paris, France, and Madrid, Spain was served in the SCHS cafeteria. The aroma of bratwurst, ham-and-cheese croissants and Spanish beef filled the air, enticing prospective buyers. The various language groups filled display tables with momentos from students', advisors', and teachers' trips abroad. Dolls in traditional costumes of their native countries, magazines and other cultural artifacts decorated the cafeteria that day. Candy imported from Spain, Germany and France sold well, proving that all the world has a sweet tooth. On the whole, the 1984 International Day was a great success.

Michael Jackson Dominates Year

With his sequin-studded glove, his sunglasses and of course his hit album "Thriller", Michael Jackson dominated the music scene. Girls sighed as he received his eight grammy, a new record. Along with Jackson, however, emerged Culture Club with a parade of hit songs, including "Karma Kameleon" and "Miss Ya Blind." The Police and Genesis also produced hit albums this past year.

New trends in clothing styles again developed over the year. Looser fitting clothing with many layers characterized the overall image. Spring brought with it the return of pedal pushers along with something new and inexpensive, plastic shoes or "jellies" became popular.

Christmas time created more chaos than usual because shoppers everywhere rushed to stores to buy the doll that has its very own birth certificate- the infamous Cabbage Patch Doll.

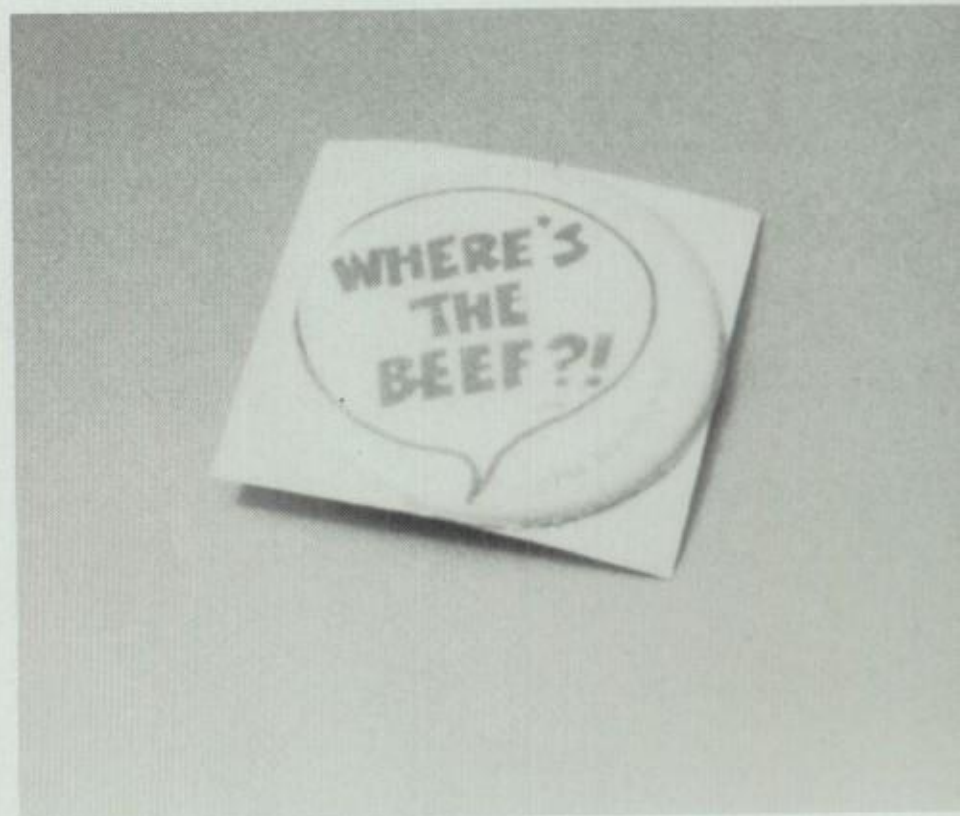

This item turned up somewhere on almost every child's Christmas list. As demand for these dolls grew, so did the price. Production could not keep up with demand until after the holidays when the price went down only slightly. Who knew that these simple dolls would be such a hit?

At the movies, "Terms of Endearment" and "Return of the Jedi" seemed to come out the favorites with the character of ET being replaced by the lovable little Ewoks.

All in all, the recession improved slightly, but people were still faced with coping with the jobless situation and finding inexpensive means of entertainment.

Videos Unfold A New Musical Era

Society's taste in entertainment constantly changes as technology broadens the vistas available to it. The cassette tape has rendered a once popular eight-track tape obsolete. A revolutionary laser beam picks up sound from a record album instead of the conventional needle.

Music's latest craze, the biggest since the walkman, has found its way into every household in America-music videos. The country seems obsessed with them. Every network has its own music videos' show, and a channel devoted just to videos is available through the local cable company. Conversation among teens has turned from "Have you heard their new song?" to "Have you seen their new video?" Professionals wonder how long this video revolution may last. It looks like this craze may be around a long time and may eventually even replace albums, cassettes and all audio entertainment.

Dating Takes On New Flavor

Dating, like almost everything else, has changed over the years. Twenty, or even ten years ago, a girl would never have thought of asking a guy out, but now with the development of the ERA and other feminist groups and ideas, things are changing. In a survey given to some SCHS students concerning dating habits of today's youth, most girls who date often said that they had personally asked a guy out, whether it be for Winter Formal or some other occasion. Winter Formal is a special opportunity for the young women at St.

Catherine's. It places them in the driver's seat for a change. It's the guy's turn for silly questions to run through his mind. "Is she going to ask me? When? What if she asks me before the girl I want to go with? What will I say? What will I do?" These questions tend to be commonplace among girls awaiting an invitation to Homecoming or Prom.

The places people go on dates have also changed. There was a time when the drive-in movie was an indispensable part of the dating scene. Today, however, while movies still draw big crowds, drive-ins do not. Few couples savor the idea of an evening at the outdoor. Parties with friends, dinner out or dancing rank high with teens today.

Perhaps more surprisingly, a lot of survey respondents expressed a liking for just staying home and watching T.V. This is but one more example of the trend towards a less up-tight atmosphere. Teens want to feel at ease with their dates and as though they can sit back and be themselves without pretenses. This trend also surfaced because of the steadily increasing expense of going out. It seemed like movies were $2.50 only yesterday. That seemed like a large expense, but now they're up to $3.75. Also, the invention of HBO and other cable stations has made T.V. more attractive than in previous years.

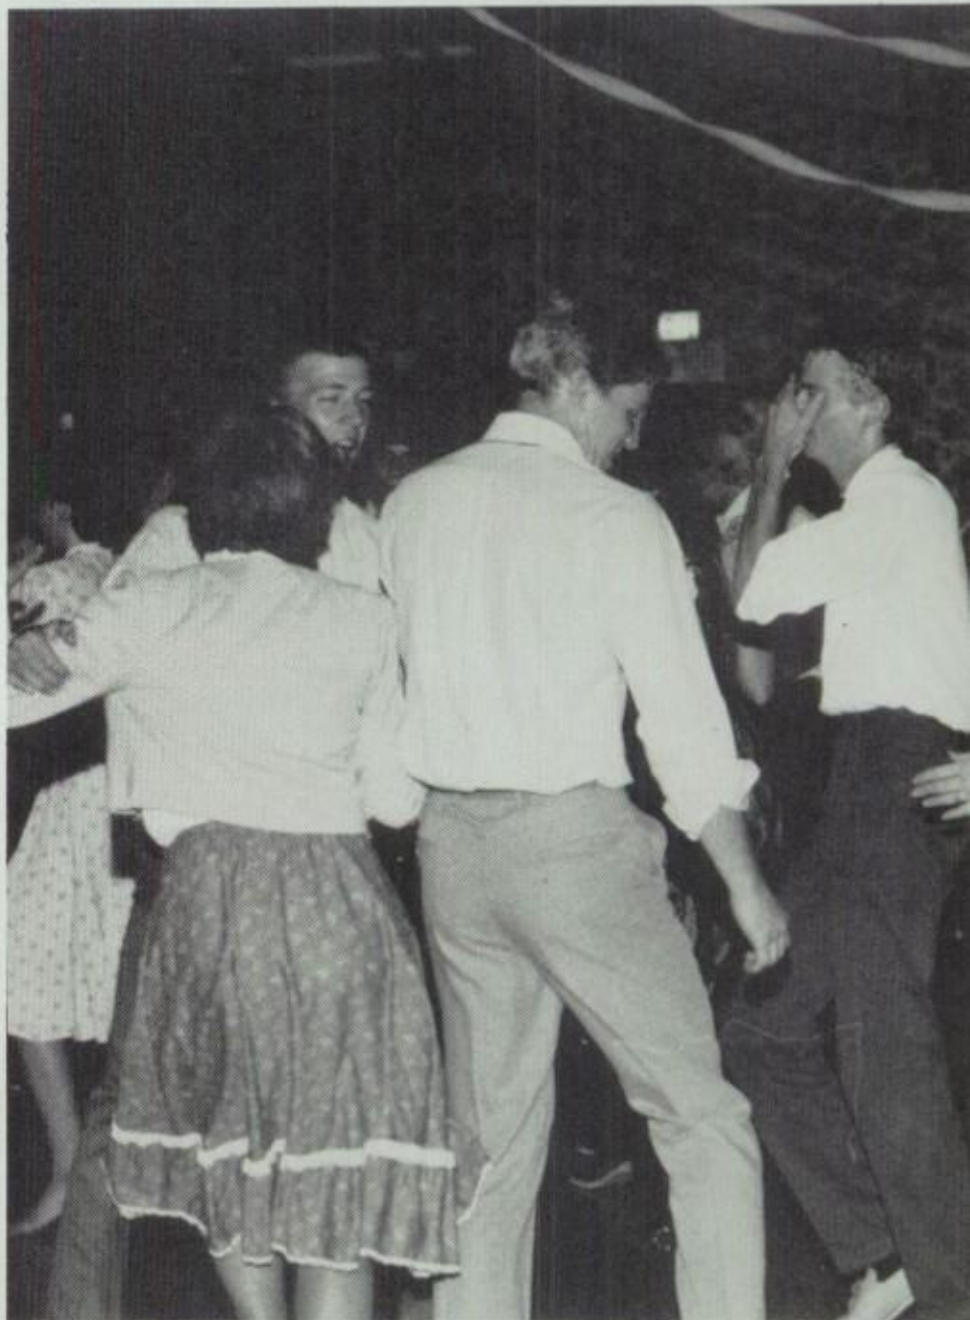

Dating, in general, has become more of a relaxed event. Dress is no exception. Many parents recall that when they went out, they dressed up, or certainly rarely wore jeans, because jeans were "grubbies". In more recent times, few teens would be caught dead seen in anything but jeans, unless the situation called for more formal dress.

Although the days of outdoor theaters and soda fountains are gone, dating continues to play an important role in the maturation of teenagers.

Drives Raise Funds

Over 50% of the student body at SCHS participated in the biggest fundraiser, the annual Patron Drive. Approaching its 10th year in 1984, students collected ads and donations from loyal patrons. Primarily student-controlled, the successful fundraiser has reached its goal 9 out of 10 times. Patron drive remains a must for providing funds for the grant-in-aid program and lowering tuition cost per student.

Freshmen Give Their All

This past August a new group of freshmen faces roamed the halls of St. Catherine's.

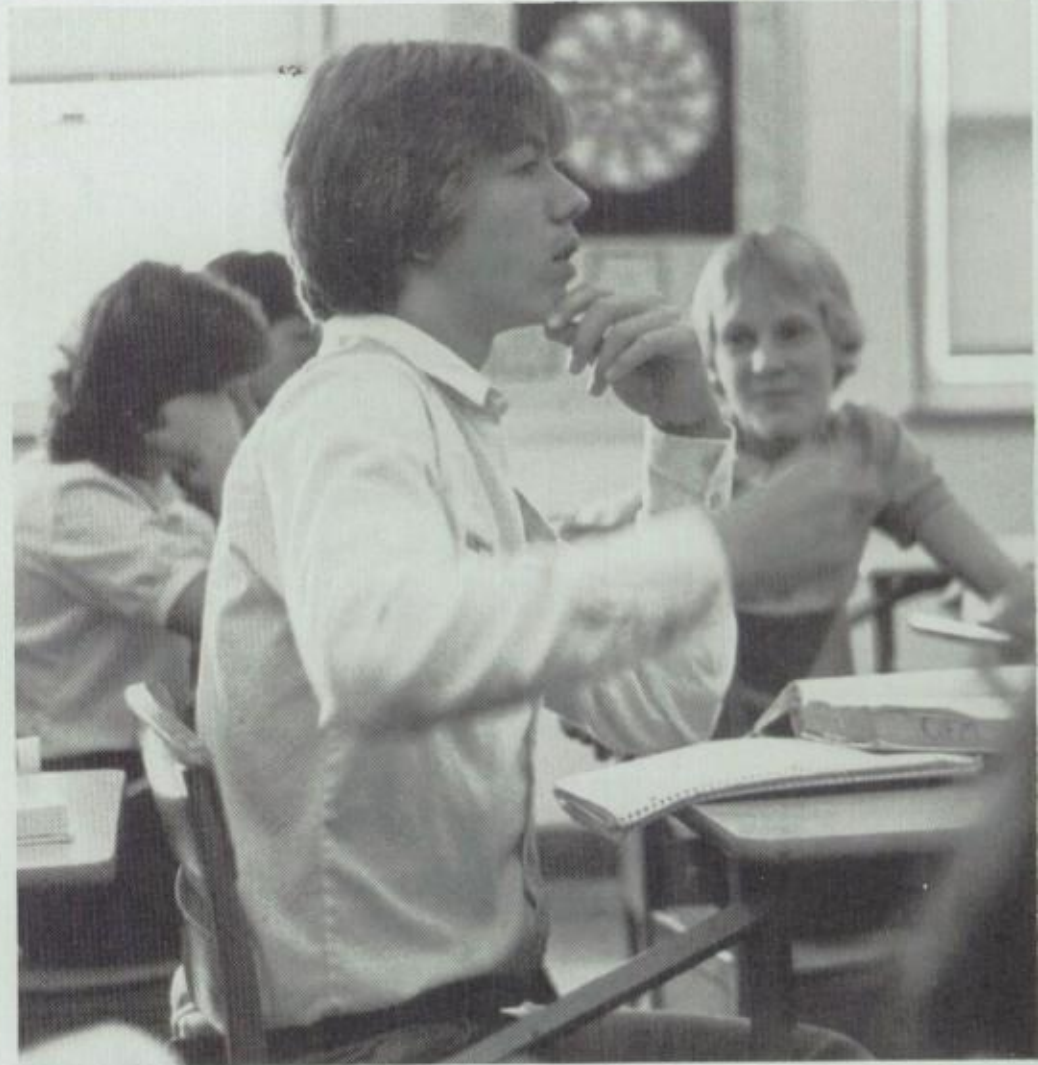

Anxieties rode high, but as the days passed, they found that the other students accepted them and they mixed in well.

Getting involved from the start, the freshmen had a big turnout for the Homecoming activities. Even though they came out on the bottom at the Spirit Day assembly, their spirit reached a climax and brought the class together.

With a surprisingly large number of candidates in the running, the freshmen chose their class officers from a group of twenty. The final results named Jeff Urquhart as president, Judy Angelini as vice president, Dave Grauwels as secretary, and John Boucher as treasurer.

The Freshmen Dance inspired doubts in some people's minds because it was a record dance, but it proceeded to be a successful event.

With their different personalities and new ideas, the Freshmen Class added a new flavor to the melting pot of St. Catherine's.

Sophomores Show Their Pride

The sophomores did their best to establish a common sense of pride, getting an early start by winning every event at the Homecoming festivities. Their spirit was up, and they seemed invincible. Physical competition, however, was not the only area in which they remained undaunted. After completing only one year at St. Catherine's, they found themselves, as sophomores, thrown into an entirely new schedule. A difficult enough task for anyone, adapting so readily as sophomores was certainly a formidable feat.

In an effort to zero in on a career goal, they met in groups with guidance counselors to discuss their ambitions and the opportunities open to them. Such activities, in conjunction with the Guidance Department, aided the sophomores in getting ahead of their peers from other schools, by utilizing a newly-acquired competitive edge.

Juniors Add Special Ingredients

With their departure from St. Catherine's just one step away, the Junior Class reached for new goals and conquered new challenges. Although the thoughts of college slowly approached, their enthusiasm in school and involvement in extracurricular activities steadily increased. Friendships strengthened as the year progressed, and pride became the class motto. The enormous homework load never got them down because they worked together to understand the new concepts presented to them. All in all, the Junior Class added spice to the daily activities of St. Catherine's.

Seniors Grow Closer

Since their initial entry through SCHS' doors four years ago, the seniors had stressed the importance of individuality. Students encouraged each other to be different, yet not to go off the other end and conform by trying so hard to be "non-conformist". But it was mostly talk for all but the very few until this year. Knowing that it was their last year together drew the seniors closer to each other than ever before and encouraged them to be themselves.

More importantly, they felt comfortable doing so. Fighting the constant temptation to fall into the "senior slide" pattern, they still managed to be enthusiastic about school and make their classes fun. Although there were times when teachers found them to be a little too excitable, for the most part, they enjoyed their zest and openness.

ORGANIZATIONS

SAC And NHS Spark Enthusiasm

Student Affairs Committee, National Honor Society, and the class officers played a dominant role in the school this year. These organizations sponsored many school events and activities designed to promote St. Catherine's in the community and to spark student enthusiasm in the school. SAC sponsored dances, donut days, and assumed significant responsibility in the success of Angel Day and the Patron Drive. They worked diligently in the planning and carrying out of the entire Homecoming festivities also. Chosen by the faculty, members of NHS achieved their positions on the basis of leadership, scholarship, character, and service. They provided food for the hungry through the St. Rose Meal Program and devoted time and patience to the tutoring of fellow classmates. The class officers raised money for their respective classes by sponsoring dances, donut days, and other individual activities. Junior officers backboned the Winter Formal dance and honored the departing seniors with Prom. Responsibility placed in these special students proved to be well-founded and true to the Christian spirit at St. Catherine's.

Lance And Shield Survive Changes

The 1983-1984 school year touched off a period of innovation and constructive change for the St. Catherine's faculty and students. Among these changes included distinct alterations in extra curricular activities. For instance, upon the departure of the multi-talented Rick Messina, the SCHS yearbook found it necessary to search for an equally talented replacement to act as Lance advisor. The result- the joint advisement of Judith Morrill and Betty Sargent- proved quite beneficial and educational for the entire staff. Their cooperative efforts contributed great insight and support to the partially disorientated, newer Lancers. Faced with the difficult challenge of this new independence, the Lance staff portrayed their dedication by immediately attempting to complete and perfect the issues at hand. Equally important, the Shield staff once again pulled through for SCHS by meeting virtually all of their deadlines and producing even more issues than in previous years. Under their easy-going yet conscientious advisor Mr. Grauwels, the staff diligently gave many hours of precious time to each and every issue. As expected, the student body received them with a certain degree of respect for the expressive talents that they contained. Overall, despite nominal yet relevant changes, two vital portions of the literary faction at SCHS enjoyed a year of fun, education, independence, and success.

Foreign Language Clubs Taste Different Cultures

Foreign languages teach students to communicate the way people in other lands do. Foreign language clubs let students have fun the way people in other lands do. Each year, German, French, and Spanish enthusiasts opt to spend time after school to participate in foreign language clubs. Activities range from singing to playing games to dining at ethnic restaurants. On occasion, the clubs get together for some friendly competition in the form of a softball game, or something of the like. Members enjoy the clubs because they can participate in language-related activities and have fun without the usual pressures of getting good grades or refining pronunciation. However, students do get more exposure to the cultural side of these nations and broaden their knowledge, while having fun.

Students Provide Entertainment

Many interested students joined the Concert Band, Mixed Chorus, and Concert Choir in hopes of having the opportunity to show their talents to an audience. These groups entertained both in as well as out of the school community besides the three annual concerts. Playing a comparatively active role, the band kept the crowds enthused at the football and basketball games. Singing for telecast during the Christmas season occupied both the Mixed Chorus and Concert Choir's time. The Concert Choir also made their second annual excursion to the Johnson's Wax Christmas party, where they sang for employees. The groups also added an extra touch to liturgies during school. All in all, students in these groups provided fine entertainment for their many audiences.

Clubs Make Athletics Evident

This year was a beneficial year for the monogram clubs. Each club elects a president and this year Ann Meisner and Bob Letsch were elected.

The Girls Monogram Club helped raise money for SCHS by working at donut sales. The Boys Monogram Club worked at the candy counter and helped fund such projects as buying new lockers for the boys locker room and new weights for the weight room. They also sold food at the basketball games and played the faculty in a basketball game.

All in all, the monogram clubs helped establish a more improved sports program for St. Catherine's students.

Hostess Serves Community

The aid of the Hostess Club members went unrecognized. They planned, served, and cleaned up after many banquets throughout the year, ranging from the Sports' banquets to the Archbishop's dinner. When they did not serve they were preparing breads and various desserts for such banquets. This year's officers were always ready and helped to remind the other girls when they were assigned to help. They helped represent Hostess Club in a manner anyone would respect and be proud of Anne Dziengel, Maria Mahoney, and Debbie Levandoski were this year's leaders of the Hostess Crew.

Students Publish Creative Works

The students in Ms. Levendusky's Creative Writing classes used their special creative talents in the producing of the Sword. The Sword staff puts out three issues during the school year. Each issue consisted of narratives, poems, short stories, humorous obituaries and several other items written by the students themselves. The selection committee collected various writings of the students and compiled them together into the different issues. The Sword artists then illustrated the thoughts of the writers. Many students' time and efforts went into the making of this recently formed publication.

NYRFPTC Relate On Students' Level

The NYRFPTC again conveyed God's message through their masses and prayer services. In addition, they provided a reflection before 9th hour each day, enhancing the meaning with relevant music and pertinent prayers.

This group of dedicated people gave students a chance to ponder on their religion, ideals and beliefs. Moreover, they painlessly got people to think about where they stood and to reevaluate their values. Using unorthodox techniques and relating to students on their level, the NYRFPTC succeeded in getting messages across like no one else had been able to accomplish.

Monopoly Club Adds New Meaning To The Word "Board"

Although one rarely hears about this recently formed group of young men and women, their purpose is simple, to play an old fashioned game of Monopoly.

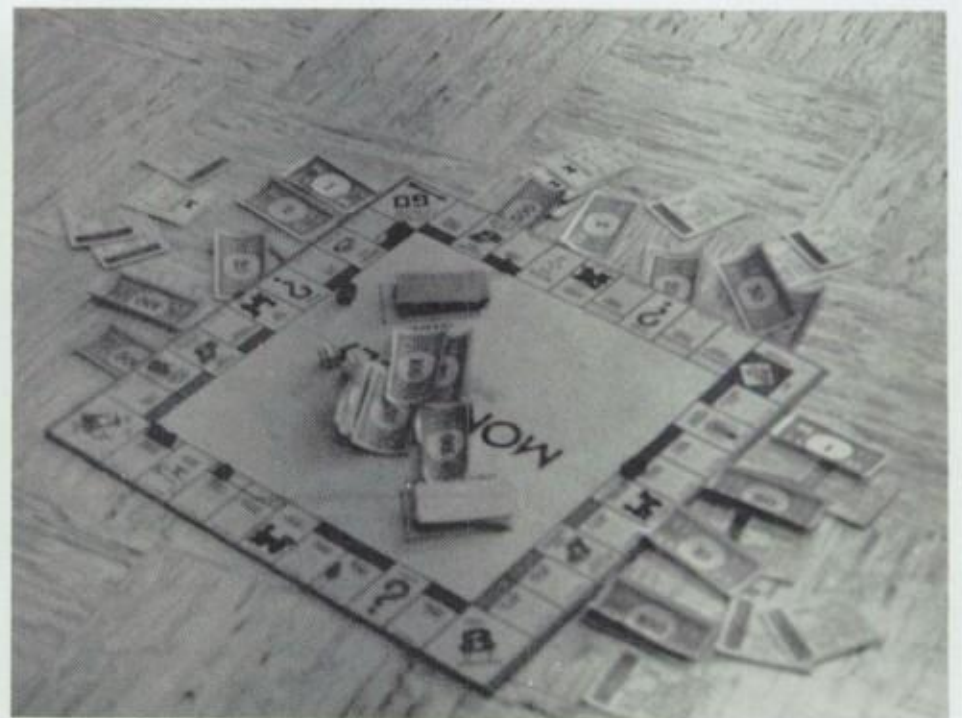

The thrills of owning Park Place or even Boardwalk resounded in the SCHS cafeteria as players deeply involved themselves in the game.

Revitalized by President Tony Black, the club gained many new players as well as retaining many of the old, experienced members.

ACADEMICS

Administration Deals With Change

While attempting to pinpoint the one distinctive area of SCHS Administration's excellence, one realizes that it remains an impossible task. In fact, many different aspects - each with its own singular significance - go into the step by step process from which the final product originates. By taking a closer look at these, one clearly sees that the collaborative efforts of the administration result in an abundance of successes that deny any assumption of it being "a one man job" established for meager frivolities. Conversely so, the administration provides SCHS with a solid backbone off of which branch limbs of progressive learning intertwined with both spiritual and mental growth. Furthermore, major changes found the group faced with new responsibilities and challenges. With the resignation of Mrs. Olson, former Director of Academics, the SCHS Administration accounted for her absence with a certain degree of pride and undaunted efficiency. The breakdown of Mrs. Olson's services consisted of Mrs. Kane handling general registrar and class selections while S. Jane took on the task of teacher evaluations and the master schedule. Overall, the administration committee proved that changes, although inevitable, can turn out for the best.

Instructors Spice Up Religion

Sr. Catherine's religion department owed much of its success to the many colorful instructors. The religion department gained popularity by persuading more and more students to reap the benefits of the available courses. A variety of classes and teachers offered a wide enough selection to suit all students. Subjects such as Challenge, Death and Dying, Life's Vocations, Life's Problems, and Morality opened new doors for students and gave them a break from the "3 R's". Current events and moral issues updated class structure and provided a format for fruitful discussions profitable to all. Meanwhile, the religion department welcomed back Mr. Bob Miller who returned willing to share his respected insight after a two year leave of absence.

Furthermore, two new courses - Critical Thinking and Classics in Literature - helped meet the needs of college bound students, while Writing Workshop, a combination of creative and technical writing, enhanced the whimsical pens of aspiring young authors.

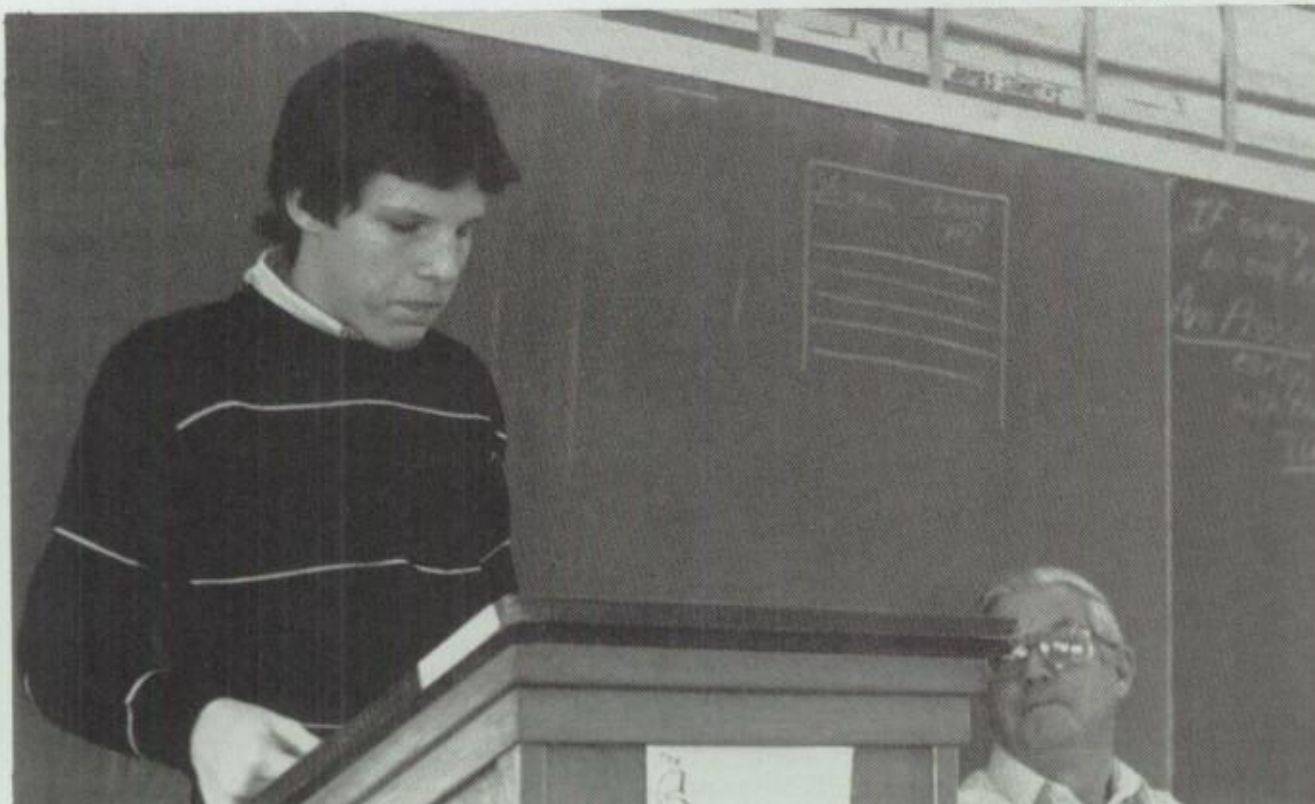

Blessed with a collection of qualified and colorful teachers, the English Department strived to better prepare today's student body for situations of tomorrow involving competent literary knowledge and vocabulary comprehension.

Science Caters To Students

Science, in the broadest sense, affects people's daily lives in ways that they could never imagine. Consequently, gaining a thorough understanding of basic scientific concepts could prove quite beneficial and worthwhile. Thus, the wide variety of courses directed toward this area of study catered to the SCHS student's needs. Changes characterized The Science Department as Chemistry split into two categories for the first time. No longer acting as the sole Chemistry instructor, S. Carolyn Hageman received assistance from Mr. Seeger, who taught a second course. The result provided yet another choice available to students. All in all, The Science Department sought to furnish students with a solid background in science, advantageous not only to those pursuing science at the college level, but also to those simply seeking to better understand the world around them.

Practicality Emphasized

To most people today, technology seems to be racing ahead of the common knowledge, almost unbridled. The Math Department, however, continued to do their part of educating the youth.

Computer classes increased their enrollments as more and more students sought to gain the distinction of being "computer literate".

Certainly, the computer has changed and will continue to change many facets of the work-a-day world, so classes like Basic Programming and Computers in Society could prove to be invaluable. However, without a solid foundation in basic mathematics, students could not advance to such levels. As a result, the department continued to encourage a strong math background by offering not only essentials like Basic Algebra, but more challenging courses like Calculus. Whatever the student's ambitions, the Math Department was sure to provide an indispensable knowledge and understanding of mathematics, computers, and their practical applications in the real world.

Foreign Language Enriches Curriculum

Part of the reason why the world is so intriguing, is the wide variety of ways people communicate. SCHS students lead the opportunity to enrich themselves by learning French, German, or Spanish. Knowing a foreign language can aid students with public relations in future careers, simplify traveling abroad, or just serve as an enjoyable elective.

With the addition of Mrs. Maryianyi, Mrs. Kerner, and Mrs. Perez as Spanish teachers, the Foreign Language Department proved to be better than ever. A majority of students pursue a foreign language for at least one year, and many continue their studies for up to four years. All in all, foreign languages allow students to experience a piece of another culture and broaden their knowledge.

Departments Grow

The Guidance Department added a new program to their busy schedule. SAP, or Student Assistance Program, provided help for students having problems at home or at school on a peer-support basis.

Another new addition to the department, Ruth Organ became their secretary, scheduling students' appointments and keeping files organized.

Helping to give students a broader view of current world issues, S. Grace informed students of various contests they could enter through the Social Studies Department. These contests gave students the chance to get involved beyond the normal department classes.

Variety Enhances Student Demand

The Fine Arts Department added new dimension to a primarily academic curriculum. As well as the popular 2-D and 3-D classes, a variety of unusual and specialized courses were also offered. These classes ranged from Ceramics to Metals to Photography. In addition, students had the opportunity to participate in six different dance classes and four choruses. For those whose tastes were not satisfied by any of these course selections, Theater Arts, Pop Music Then and Now, and either of SCHS' two bands also offered a creative outlet. The wide variety of courses included under the general heading of "Fine Arts" made it possible for students to pursue a broad assortment of diverse interests. Some continued to nurture and perfect talents they'd had since childhood, while others discovered skills which had previously gone unnoticed.

Students Get Physical

Physically fit; that phrase has gained new impact in the past several years. Everyone seems to be getting into the act, whether by jogging occasionally or by undertaking a grueling serious diet/exercise regimen. However, amidst all the attention "getting physical" has received, the Physical Education Department quietly continued doing its job. Students knew the meaning of fitness from the moment they first entered the gymnasiums as freshmen, via the required gym classes. After that initial physical "awakening", those who enjoyed giving their bodies a work-out could opt to advance to other gym classes, often more fun, and frequently focusing on a specific area. One such class offered was Weight Training, one version for girls and one for boys. Programs were offered for the serious athlete, as well as for the student simply seeking an outlet for his/her pent-up energies. To sum it up, the Phy. Ed. Department truly had something for everyone.

Business Sense Benefits SCHS

Preparing students for careers in accounting, management, or secretarial positions described but one of the Business Department's functions. It also aided students in simply giving themselves a more rounded education. Skills such as typing always prove to be indispensable, and many students took advantage of the opportunity to learn how to type efficiently. Personal Typing offered a crash course of sorts, reaching the basics, as well as giving exposure to business letter formats and various other specific forms. Classes such as Business Management introduced students to the procedures of managing their own incomes and running a business effectively. By taking classes in business, students formulated a basic understanding of budgeting, office procedures, and self-responsibility.

Library Meets Many Needs

The usefulness of the library increased greatly since more people had study halls and consequently, more time to use it. A wide variety of books were available, from science-fiction, to foreign dictionaries, to encyclopedias. The dedicated women who worked in the library were extremely helpful in helping students find the proper book and in keeping the library a quiet, peaceful place to study. The staff encouraged more people to come and enjoy the full benefits that the library had to offer. Students found new amusement in reading magazines, newspapers, and researching, as the librarians requested. They stressed that the library should be more than just another place to study — it should offer an alternative to study halls. So, many students discovered the new pleasure of reading for personal enjoyment, and relaxing by doing so during the course of a busy school day.

Kitchen And Maintenance Staff Act Efficiently

Yet another year of hard work was put in by the Maintenance and Kitchen Crews. Although not usually recognized as a vital part of the school, the student body as well as the faculty wouldn't be able to get along without them. Keeping the school in smooth running order and keeping the stomachs of SCHS satisfied wasn't an easy job. It took lots of dedication and hard work to get their jobs done, but they did it with efficiency. All in all, a job was well done by the Kitchen and Maintenance Crews.

Football Team Possesses Strong Attitude

Although statistically the football team fell a little short of a winning season, the attitude among the players, and the response from the crowd in general made up for the deficit.

The spectator support and the players' frame of mind produced what could be called a championship season.

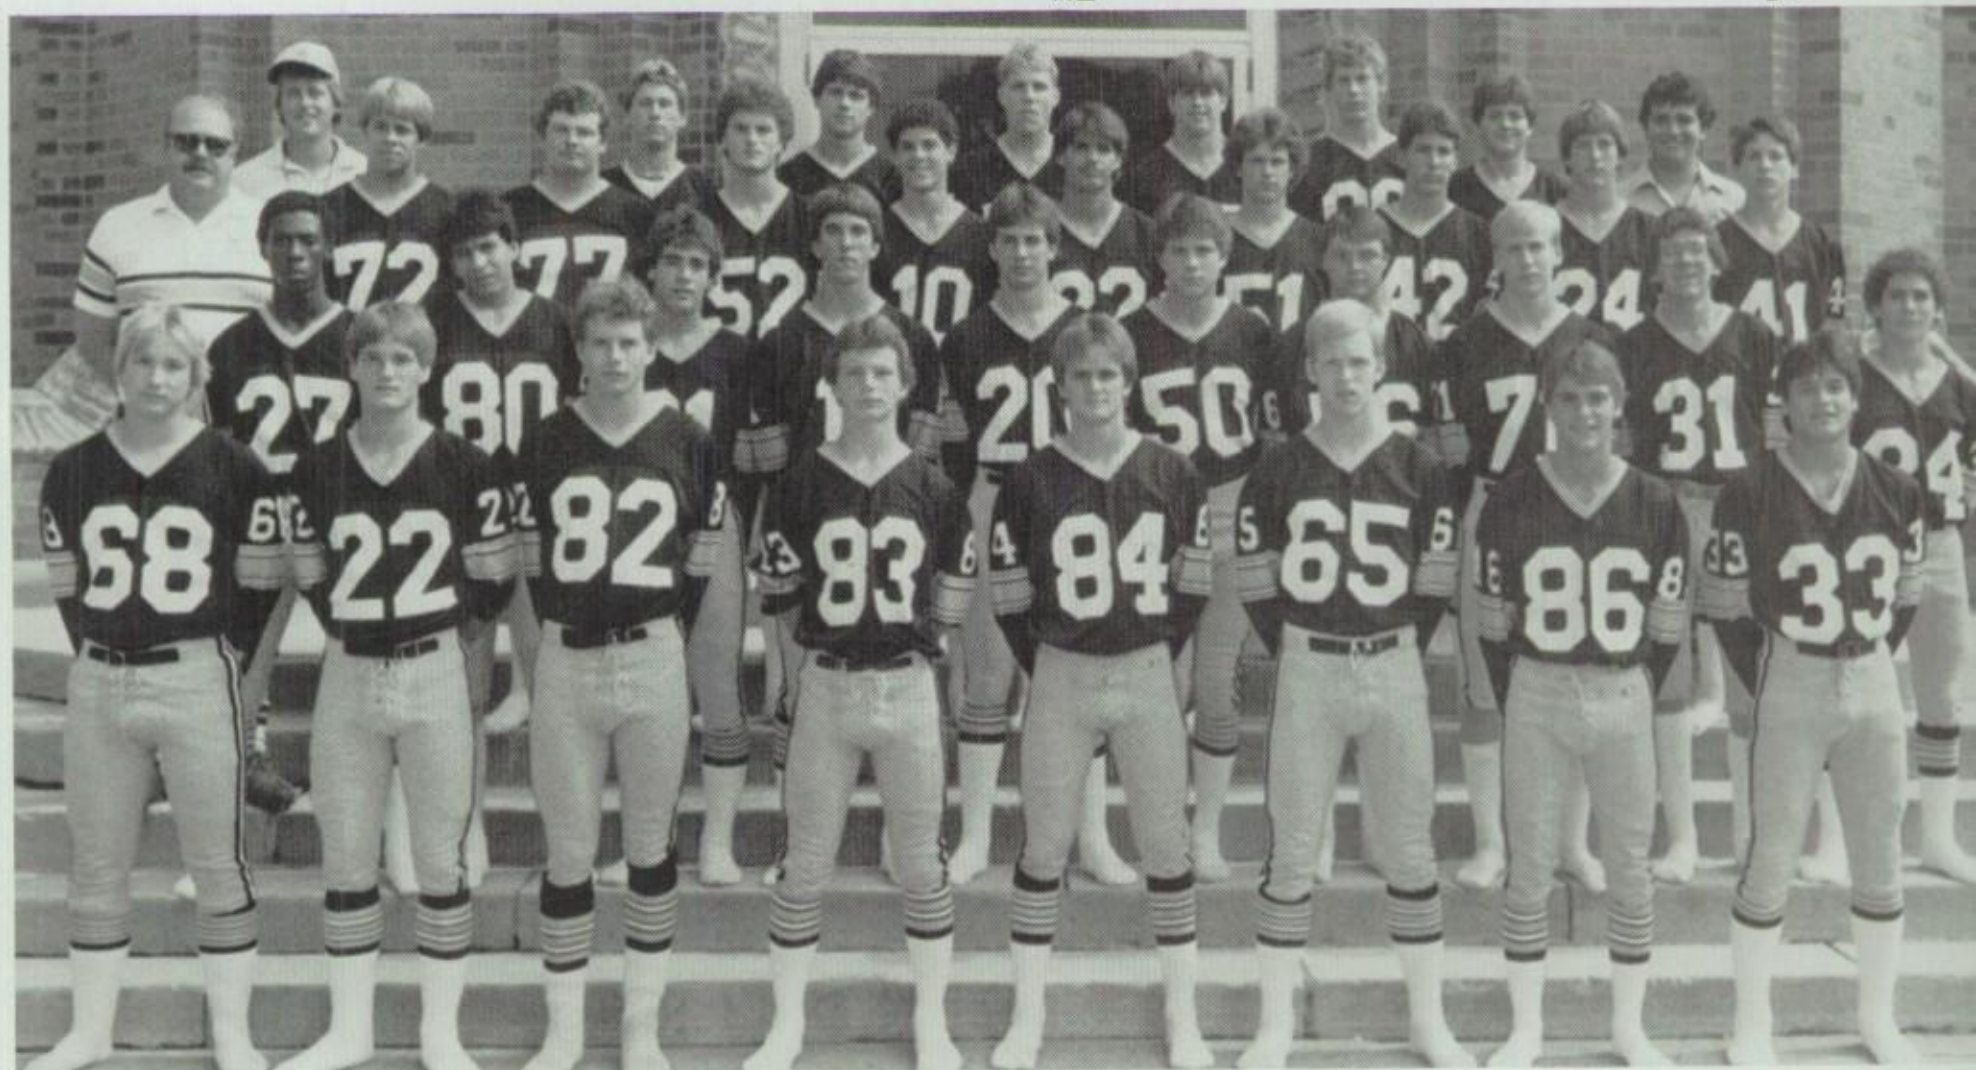

The attitude, noticed by the players as well as Coach Welsh, was a very positive and team-orientated one. As one player expressed it, "It would have been nice to have a better record, but that isn't the most important thing." This thought seemed to be prevalent among the players. Even after their disappointing loss to Marquette, the players held together and came back to defeat St. Joseph's the following week.

Having completed a successful season the team chose Pat Geraghty as MVP and Paul Gilbride as team captain.

Harriers Improve State Record

The Angel Boy's Cross Country Team ended the season on a winning note. With an increased winning percentage, the team went on to become a competitor in the running with the top WISAA schools. At State, John Polzin placed third and Jason Caspers finished eighth. "Our season went very well. We are now close to being among the best teams in the state, and we took a giant step in that direction this year," stated Coach Tom Scheller. Individual honors went to John Polzin, who was named to the All-State Team and to Tony Koleske, who was named Team Captain.

Angel's Stride Into Head Wind

Strengthened by a gifted influx of younger members, the Angel girls enjoyed a season of growth and development.

Upperclassmen enlightened and cooperated with the underclassmen to achieve unity that proved quite beneficial.

Talented and enthusiastic freshmen Jenny Gross and Jenny Rogers contributed a great deal to the team and in return harvested invaluable experience that will assist them in their years of running to come. The Angels leaped into the season victoriously but failing health took its toll as the year jogged by. A fine turnout of supportive and caring spectators enlivened the meets and Mr. Bob Miller, a die-hard fan, offered much aid and encouragement. Mary Rogers earned the recognition of outstanding runner and a new-comer, Jill Lange, received an award of effort for her constant show of determination in executing the best of her ability. Coach Tom Scheller's inspiration and guidance drove the girls to individual and team success and pulled them through difficult times. A 5th place finish in Metro, and a 6th place finish in the WISAA State Meet confirmed the fact that as the Angels improved, so did the competition. Coach Tom Scheller and the girls look on the future with hope as the young team gets stronger and they reflect on the past with constructive speculation.

Soccer Kicks Its Way To Popularity

After only four years, soccer at St. Catherine's definitely materialized as a fast-growing sport. Many changes characterized the team this year, including a move to Pershing Football Field, where all of the home games were played. The new location better accomodated the sport, and the many fans, whose numbers consequently increased. Many returning seniors and lettermen formed a solid base for the team and led them to an early season victory at the Parkside Tournament. The season as a whole, proved to be a successful one, just falling short of winning a bid for the state preliminaries. Illustrating the team's outstanding abilities, Andy Lane, Bryan Ortwein, Aaron Callender, Tom Vaile and Jim Pleva were named to the All-County Team. Commented Co-captain Bryan Ortwein, "This soccer team showed great poise at times, but at other times, our inexperience showed through. We were led by a great class of seniors, supported by a good group of underclassmen. As the first class to participate in soccer for four years leaves the school, the outlook is onward and upward."

Determination Overcomes Defeat

The SCHS Girl's Volleyball team finished the 1983 season gaining respect from every team in the conference.

Winning second place in the Tremper Tournament, the Angels added a spark of life to a somewhat depressing season. Unfortunately, the Angels suffered more losses than they would have liked. Still, the team put forth more than their share when it came to effort, and the spirit of the game, after all, is just as important as winning.

The girls' unrelenting drive to succeed and never-dampened spirit made for a successful and enjoyable season, despite a disappointing record.

Girls' Tennis Adds New Coach

Girls' Tennis Coach Sue Wanggaard described the season's goal as, "to gain experience and through the experience improve play." She also added that, "The team as a whole didn't improve as much as hoped for."

Returning letter winners Michelle Lurkus, Jill Meyers and Wendy Schroeder added to the teams overall experience.

Toward the end of the season, the team suffered a slight setback as Coach Wanggaard stated that, "a general decline at the end of the season capped off by not getting points in either the regional tournament or the conference tournament."

Team Captain Lisa Schoene and Team M.V.P. Anna Alfano were honored at the fall sports banquet.

Golfers Finish As "Bridesmaids"

The golf team ended their season quite well with an identical 10-4 record for both J.V. and Varsity. The Varsity players who achieved this record were returning lettermen: Dan Jackson, Dan Thielen, Doug Albregts and Pere Eirel, with Dan Jackson as team captain. Falling short to Marquette by just a few strokes, they placed second in Conference. As Rev. Slosar so eloquently stated, "We were the bridesmaids instead of the brides, but second place is nothing about which to be ashamed."

Tickets Pay For Themselves

For the Angels, the season peaked with yet another exciting trip to State. Hopes of bringing home a first place trophy ran high. The team rallied hard, throughout the regular season and played its last regional game against bad calls. Despite the problems posed by referees, the Angels came out on top and set their sights on State.

After winning the first game, the Angels looked tough to beat. Saturday proved to be a bit of a struggle, though, and St. Car's lost a heart-breaker to Marquette. Still, the boys did the school proud and gave spectators one very exciting season. Said one enthusiastic senior, "Those tickets paid for themselves!"

Angels Head To State

With only one returning starter, the girls' basketball team accomplished a great deal this season. Inexperience, a big factor in the development of this team, accounted for much of the skepticism some classmates felt regarding the team's chance to excel in the conference. Their victory, however, over Memorial in the Regional Semi-finals proved their doubts to be unfounded. This win highlighted the Angel's season, for it was the first time in three years that they had beaten Memorial. Although they lost at State in the semi-finals to Plus, the state champions, overall the Angels had a super year with a 16-6 record. The team captain was Kelly Pettit and the MVP was Melanie Eland.

Angels Outshine The Rain

The Boys' Baseball Team completed a season that the coaches and players can look back on with pride.

Aside from many rained-out games, the baseball season turned out to be very enjoyable for the players as well as the fans. With much effort and the help of returning lettermen, there was no question that Coach Letsch and Coach Graceffa couldn't have been more pleased with the team's overall record. ## Boys Survive Difficulties

Once again, the Boy's Track Team made consistent progress throughout the season. Though somewhat sporadic, they always placed well, frequently taking first, second, or third place finishes. Two freshmen, Jeff Urquhart and Pete Metz, added talent to an already solid varsity team. Sophomore John Polzin continued to contribute his expertise, an indispensable asset to Saint Catherine's. Running, an always challenging sport, can even become less than pleasant when the weather gets nasty. Runners were plagued by gusty winds and driving rain. Further complicating matters, the region experienced inclement cold well into the month of May. At the hands of Mother Nature, the Track Team surely suffered. Still, being a hardy bunch, they kept a stiff upper lip and trudged on, undaunted.

Experienced Team Retains Respect

The Boys' Tennis Team enjoyed one of their finest seasons in the history of the sport here. Lead by junior Jason Caspers, #1 singles, and seniors Andy Lane and Tony Veranth, #1 doubles, the team won match after match with convincing style. Junior Mike Oremann and senior Pete Benedict with sophomore Joe VanBree held the #2 singles and doubles spots, respectively. They, too, contributed greatly to the success of the Angels. Coach Rick Meyers had an abundance of talent to work with, since half of the varsity team had four years of experience with the team. This, as well as other factors, enabled the Angels to become a force to be reckoned with, both in the Metro Conference and in the state.

Softball Players Don't "Slide" Around.

The JV and Varsity softball players used their talents skillfully. The JV team, composed mostly of freshmen, benefited from their few, but good practices to end their season successfully. The new coach, Jeanine Carroll, guided the team in developing their own abilities and individualizing their skills. Headed by Coach Barb Christensen, the varsity demonstrated their power to win. Also having many rained out games, the varsity team put even more effort into the games they played. Lori Pfeiffer stated, "We're just awesome."

Squads Fire-Up Fans

The pom-pom squad provided exciting entertainment during half-times. With the help of two summer camps and some innovative choreography by members, the girls did St. Catherine's proud. The pom-pom girls blended their skills, resulting in a most productive year.

The cheerleaders as well had a very productive year. To prepare for the season, the squad spent their summer at two cheerleading camps. Cathy Willis, the squad's captain, improved the old routines while thinking of new and fresh routines and pyramids with the help of the other members.

Both the pom-pom and cheerleading squads enjoyed themselves while entertaining the audiences as well.

Summer Plays Display Talent

Once again a talented group of directors, players and crews provided a successful summer season. The season's opener Break a Leg, a comedy by Ira Levin, flopped on Broadway. Under the direction of Michael Black, however, it found success at St. Catherine's. Absurd Person Singular, written by Alan Ayckbourn and directed by Alison J. Patel, involved a tangled plot. The Philadelphia Story, directed by Rick Bahl, featured a plot focusing on Tracy Lord, a beautiful, young girl with a complicated love-life. The production delightfully wrapped up the summer season.

Cast Puts On Much Ado

The SCHS players come alive in their presentation of Shakespeare's Much Ado About Nothing. The fall play was successfully directed by Father Roetzer and Amy Kerr assisted the director. The fine casting selection added to the overall enjoyment of the play. The intriguing plot was centered around several characters and their entanglements in love. The concept of "blind marriage" and trickery clearly expresses their perception of love.

This production as the title suggests, relates to those people who have Much Ado About Nothing.

Success Continues Undiminished

Opening to packed audiences for the third year running, A Christmas Carol: Scrooge and Marley delighted patrons with its familiar story. Directed by Rev. Russell G. Roetzer, the play's run had its share of surprises. Opening night saw the audience sitting in on a "rehearsal". Periodically, the show was stopped to make corrections. Despite the somewhat humiliating start, the rest of the performances were particularly successful, due to fine acting and superior backstage crews. Sensible minds know when they've got a good thing going, and Rev. Roetzer is certainly no fool. A Christmas Carol is slated for production next year too.

Director Realizes Dream

"I'd like to thank you for helping make my dream come true," remarked Rev. Roetzer at his cast meeting closing night. Rev. Russell G. Roetzer directed Barnum, the spring musical. The cast consisted of 26 talented, young men and women, a relatively small cast for the musical.

Viewers left the show remarking, "It's the best one they've done," and, "I loved it!" Barnum had its share of surprises, tumbling and special effects. P.T. Barnum (Nathan Buege) continued to amaze the audiences with his many talents. He walked a tightrope, pulled a rabledoth out from underneath dishes, performed magic tricks and dangled on a rope from the balcony while singing. The Ringmaster (Andy Bruett) made his entrance onstage sliding down a pulley.

Although this musical was relatively new as well as the songs, the cast managed to familiarize the audience with the songs and the dances. The audience loved the brick toss to "One Brick at a Time," as well as Barnum's trampoline jump to kiss Chairy (Lisa Schoene) just before "There is a Sucker Born Every Minute." Thanks to the Melody Top Theater, the costumes were beautiful. Props and stage crews did a terrific job with the many props and difficult scenery.

For most seniors, closing night meant their last time on the SCHS stage. After bows, the audience was touched with the hugs and tears of the cast. In the end, juggling, tumbling, comedy and drama all helped Rev. Roetzer to realize his dream of performing Barnum on the SCHS stage.

- B: Whimsical downs follow Chairy Barnum (Lisa Schoene), performing their wacky antics.

Play Season Ends Delightfully

St. Catherine's players topped off their season with Eugene O'Neill's comedy, "Ah, Wilderness." This humorous three-act play had a marvelous cast of characters including a clumsy maid, a drunken uncle, and a mischievous son. ## Seniors Begin Chapter Two

The class of 1984 was ushered out in style with a mass at Sienna Center and the actual graduation the following day.

The mass featured students performing a short skit in which they reflected on the events of the past four years. Representatives from each area of the school brought to the altar their contributions to the departing class. Rev. Roerzer offered a thoughtful homily, in which he encouraged the seniors to remember that graduation marks a beginning, or commencement, rather than an end. He suggested that every student should find something unpleasant from his high school years and "get rid of it", leaving only the most cherished memories.

On Wednesday evening, with the graduates-to-be feeling anxious to get the formalities taken care of, graduation was held. The ceremony began with a few words from Rev. Roerzer, followed by remarks from Mr. Lemense. Then Rev. Roerzer introduced the various representatives to present awards and scholarships. Finally, the much-anticipated moment arrived and Lou Raymond began to read the long list of names that transformed students into graduates, as Mr. Lemense placed the diplomas into their hands. Faces beamed as tassels were shifted from left to right and the transformation was truly complete. After the ceremony, the graduates threw their hats into the air in a show of joy and exuberance that could no longer be contained. The long journey had finally been completed, and somehow, looking back, it suddenly did not seem so long anymore.

One of the proudest moments a parent experiences is seeing his son or daughter being recognized for his accomplishments. This being the case, there must have been a lot of thrilled parents in the stands on graduation night. Representatives from all facets of the Racine area were present to award scholarships and monetary awards to seniors who had been named as recipients. Many, many students were fortunate enough to receive recognition from businesses and organizations, as well as from colleges.

On a less serious note, Prom was held the following week. Beginning at 8 p.m. in the SCHS cafeteria on May 30, 1984, the Class of '84 began its "final hurrah" as part of the SCHS community to the theme of "Famous Last Words." At 11 p.m., the car parade to Memorial Hall for the all-city celebration commenced. The theme there was "Yesterday, Today and Forever." In the wee hours of the morning, a continental breakfast was served to all. The festivities culminated at 6 a.m. with the remaining revellers watching the sunrise over the lake.

Throughout the years, restaurants and pubs have provided us with a place to celebrate holidays and personal achievements, a rendezvous of mystery and enchantment, an opportunity to enjoy friendship and just a good spot to eat. With such an extensive variety of atmospheres to choose from, people may run into a greasy spoon café for a quick bite or may sit back, relax and savor the elegant surroundings of a four course meal in a dimly lit lounge. In the fifties, drive-ins made eating in your car a favorite weekend pastime for teenagers and now the local McDonald's and Wendy's serve the same purpose.

Along with the various restaurants comes the tantalizing spread of international cuisine that their menus so colorfully list. One may choose to delve into a bit of Italy, Germany, France, China, Spain, or good 'ole America through the scrumptuous food they have to offer. There's something for everyone's individual tastes and priced to accommodate different piggybanks.

Restaurants bring good times, friends and eating all under the same roof and have been the center of social life since the beginning of time. They will live on for as long as people have an appetite and that proves to be forever.

Cheri:

Well what can I say you a super great friend, we've been friends for 4 years now. Oh my God! Too long! But you a terrific person, one I could always forget! HA! You know I'm just kidding. You have always been there when I needed a shoulder, I really deeply want to thank you for that. Remember the times in Typing I, watch out for flying spit balls. God, that was a great class. We had the best time in there. All those spit balls flying in that poster and on his desk I never laughed so hard. Cough wish then get stuck Hi Cheri,

Remember me? I was in ceramics class with you.

as was our Junior year, Remember my damn typewriter would never, ever work. We'd always be sweet and hitting the stupid thing.
